OK, thanks for the clarification. With that, you can ignore the summons sent to you. Thank you!

Yes, it was under an ounce. I get that the officer thought it was hashish oil, but there wasn't enough of the "goo" inside the capsules to quantify how much delta-9-THC was in it, so I couldn't report it as a class "C".

Hi Sonja,

I was just able to locate this file. You're correct that the lab number is [REDACTED]. However, the officer had charged the defendant with possession of a class C controlled substance because he thought it was "hashish oil," not marijuana. I see on your cert that it tested positive for marijuana. Based on the officer's description of the capsules the MJ was contained in, I think it certainly must be under an ounce. However, if you can please confirm that, it would be very helpful. If in fact it's under an ounce, that would only be a civil infraction so I would no longer need you to come in for the trial date.

Thanks,
Jen

Hi Jen-

I received your summons for the [REDACTED] case scheduled for trial on 2/15/12, but I don't see the lab number(s) listed on the summons. By looking up his name, I'm guessing that the lab number is [REDACTED] but it would be great if you could confirm that with me. Thanks.
